INTRODUCTION

Mark played in the NFL for five seasons including the Raiders and Saints and is a vested member of the NFL Players Association. He is also in the Hall of Fame at the University of Washington.

As a successful entrepreneur, Mark has started 3 multi-million dollar companies including one which was venture-backed and sold. Mark is now an executive for Sports Illustrated.

Mark is on a quest to become the first NFL player to ever climb the Seven Summits. To date, Mark has summited 6 of the world's highest mountains with Mt Everest left. Mark also plans to climb Lhotse, the 4th highest mountain in the world within 24 hours of climbing Mt Everest. There are less than 40 people to ever accomplish this.

Mark also started a campaign called Emilia's Everest to raise money and awareness for people afflicted by Epilepsy.

He'll share his journey and specific strategies that have helped him overcome obstacles and achieve at the highest level.

In October, prior to the Raider/Chiefs game, Mark was featured in a NFL Networks' segment called Life After Football.

Let's watch this short video and then welcome Mark.
